Alabama's mighty cohorts bcwlllered the Kentuckians in the first half with a dazzling long-distance passing attack that netted them three touchdowns, but the "neversay-die" spirit of the Big Blue came back in the second half to outplay the Red Elephants and score 14 points to the Tide's 13, to gain the inique distinction of being the only team to score two touchdowns against the Tidemen this season.

Johnson, the Ashland Express, outshone any other back on the field and scored both of the Kentucky touchdowns, the second a scintillating 69 yard run from scrimmage, during which he out-ran the two star Alabama sophomores, Riley and Boozer. With his star running mate, Pritchard, out of the game, Johnson was forced to carry the brunt of the Kentucky attack, and despite the fact that he was guarded closely he averaged almost 9 yards every time he carried the ball, which was better than any other back in the game.

Jimmy Long led the great play of the Kentucky line, which on two occasions stopped the Tide's running attack cold when the Elephant's had first downs within Kentucky's ten yard line.

Alabama's express-train running attack, which ground over Georgia, Tennessee and other teams in the South, was stopped time and again by the furious defense of the Wildcats, and Alabama had to resort to the spectacular passing attack of Howell and Riley in order to pile The Big Bluc rose to great heights

Lucy Jean Anderson hates to admit it, but she was born in Parts, never gets any heavter than 103 pounds, no matter how many helpings of french-fried po-tatoes she eats. One thing she likes very much to do is eat large quantitles of that good strawberry jam her mother makes so well. You've seen her out there leading the cheering section, and if Lucy Jean ean't make you hoarse cheering for old Kentucky, nobody ean. 11ow one small girl can be president of Chi Deita Phi, treasurer of Theta Sigma Phi, nistorian for Phi Beta, editor for Mortar Board, sec-retary of the YWCA, and a member of The Kernel staff all at the same time is hard to understand, and she admits that she has to tack notes up ail over the house to re-mind her what she has to do next. Riding is her favorite sport, even when she falls off. Just ordinary riding isn't thrilling enough for her so she learned to jump last year and she thinks its the most thriliing sport there is. When she was younger she had three ponies, but now all she has is a bowl of goldfish and a dog named Hink, whose name she wishes was Imp. She is very fond of pets, and at various times has had several chameleons which disappeared, some white mice the eat ate, a turtle that got lost, and a miniature dog named Pedro who could stand on the palm of her hand, until he died of pneumonia She got Pedro while she was in Cuba. She is Scotch by descent, but much prefers Wayne King to bagpipes and Cab Calloway. Sail-boats and Bob Maloney thrili her, but of course she hasn't got a sail-

Last year they decided that she was the Beauty Queen for 1934—the most beautiful girl on the camand Ruby Dunn's picture brightened the pages of newspa-pers all over the United States, and even Mexico-doubtless causing an increased immigration from that country. She was born in Cynthiana in 1914, doesn't like sweets or spinach, but potatoes are very much O. K. with her. She is majoring in music and they liked her singing so well at the University extension studios of station WHAS that they made her a staff soloist, iast year, and her voilin playing is just as fine. She plays in Guignol philharmonic orchestras, longs to Strollers, Glee elub, and is a Phi Beta pledge. She is a recent and attractive addition to Andy Anderson's orchestra, and when not whether or not to go; (nine eases out of ten the question is automatic, not meaning what it expresses) it is how to answer. Somehow or other I never could develop habijuai answers to such mannerisms. I remember one time of having made the blundering answer "Can't, don't guess; better go home with me," when he was already at "home with mc," and had been a whole day. I know the proper response, when I'm not taken by sur-prise; but in spite of all I can do, it always comes as a surprise.

There are so many of these botinersome expressions to remember the answers for; one is enough. I remember one time when I was in the middle of a plow furrow, mending a broken plow, when a voice eame from the nearby road, "What are you doin'-workin'?" Of course I was working; did he suppose that I was sitting there in the baking sun, hammering as hard as my sirength would let me simply for the fun there was in it? Well, I was angry aiready and such a fool ish question, from one not actually interested anyway, made me furious, and I answered as hotly as the sun that baked me, "H - - no. I'm fool gathering and you seem to be the first."

There's the one about fishing. never went fishing near a road in my life that some "hair brain" did not ask the idiotic question, "Fish-in'?" A pretty good guess considering the evidence: my sitting at the river-bank with a bucket near me, a pole extending out over the stream, a thread from the pole into the water, and, perhaps, a fish or two on a thread in the shallow water before me.

Should I answer pleasantly with a "thought I'd try my luck today," when deep in my heart I think eurses upon the hypocraey, the silliness, and the triteness of the expression? I fail, somehow to eatch though when it is possible for me the spirit of such e-aeuiations, alto think in a conventional manner, I become as much a hypocrite as the worst of my fellow beings, and continue making responses more hackneyed than ever.

My life could be made a hundred per cent more enjoyable if there could be some system whereby I eould be automatically, or otherwise, be sure of the right thing to Purdue University say, at the right time, to the right person, in the right place. Perhaps in the far future I shall become one of those automatie human mechanisms able to spurt out the proper expressions, always to fit the occasion. But io tell the truth, I doubt tf I shall live long enough to real eommon, "Why don't you go home with me?" That's just it; why don't I? The trouble with me is, that men be allowed some originality and freedom of expression, or else, that there be formulated one question, to fit each definite occa-

Saturday afternoon on Stoll field a great Alabama team, perhaps the greatest in the history of the Crimson Tide, met and defeated the Wildeats of Kentucky by what might be termed a top-heavy score. Many of the alumni were there hoping to see their down-trodden alma mater come through and upset the Tidesmen.

Strange as it may seem, however, there is no complaining. The students are backing Wynne and the team to an even greater extent. The alumni, without exception, went home happy with glowing praises for the Kentucky team, Wynne and Johnson's long run. What brought this about le team spirit. This line of reasoning is some-what in error. A fighting spirit does the Tide. not come from the bleachers. They have gained their confidence when are not on the field playing the from the team. If they have the spirit to fight in the face of great puntung out. Kentucky gained conhandicaps, they will imbue their watchers and friends with that great spirit. They say that all the world about 11 yards before he was down-loves a winner but there are just as ed. Johnson made it first down in many who cheer the underdog, if mid-field and then threw a beautihe fights.

Such was the case Saturday. When the fans saw an outclassed Kentucky team suddenly rare up in the third quarter and go down the field with a power that not even the great Crimson Tide could stop. They went wild. It did not matter that that attack was only good for two touchdowns, and that physical handicaps were too great to bring about a victory. What counted was that that team was fighting to the last bit of its ability and the crowd appreciated it and so they went home

That is what is creating school spirit. Examples are many and close at hand of teams that were beaten but fought so hard that in succeeding years a spirit arose that depths to a championship plane. The spirit started with the team and went from there to the student body which eventually brought them a winner. So be it with Kentucky. The spirit has arrived.
